U.S. Close to Decision on Rape Suspect in Japan
James Onusko, U.S. Air Force Office of Special Investigations commander, shakes hands with Okinawa Police Station chief Koshin Ibraha as he leaves the police station where a U.S. airman suspected in the rape of a Japanese woman was being questioned, in Okinawa July 5, 2001. Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi joined a chorus of his ministers who are urging Washington to hand over the airman, saying he wanted the right decision soon. (Kimmisa Mayama/Reuters)
